Housing and Services, Inc.

Housing & Services, Inc. (HSI) is celebrating twenty years of housing development and management programs for lower income households and New Yorkers with special needs. We believe that everyone needs a home.

Founded in 1987, HSI's programs include The Kenmore, The Narragansett and The Cecil, all in Manhattan, and Scatter-Site in the Bronx. Each program provides services that are customized to aid men and women with special needs who live with a range of HIV/AIDS, mental illness, physical disabilities and addiction. On-site programs include medical, educational/vocational, and other social services.

HSI is responsible for developing and preserving more than 3,000 units of housing, including groundbreaking work converting Mitchell Lama rental projects into affordable cooperatives. HSI also consults for other non-profits to develop supportive housing programs by assembling financing packages, creating links with government agencies, and crafting viable budgets and timelines.

HSI is led by Executive Director Jim Dill.

The Sean Kimerling Testicular Cancer Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to raising awareness of testicular cancer and the need for regular self-examination. Our goal is to increase early detection of testicular cancer. We seek to ensure that young men are aware of the disease and have the information they need to conduct regular self-examinations, recognize possible warning signs, and seek medical help without embarrassment or fear of stigmatization.

The Foundation was established in memory of Sean Kimerling, the Emmy Award-winning anchor of WB 11 sports and pre-game announcer for the Mets. Sean died from testicular cancer on September 9, 2003. He was only 37.

The Sean Kimerling Testicular Cancer Foundation is duly registered in the State of New York.
